rolled up instead of spread out. But the fruit roll must be well made. If they are heavy they are not fit to eat. The dough for these rolls should be made shorter and richer than for baking powder biscuits. It should be mixed a little stiffer, and it should be rolled thin as for fruit pie crust. They require an oven hot enough to bake them quickly, but thoroughly. Dried peaches and apricots are better than the fresh fruits. Prunes, dates, cherries and raisins make delicious rolls.

Sauce for Fruit Rolls: Cream and sugar are good to serve with most of these fruit rolls. Any sauce that partakes of the flavor of the fruit used and sweetened according to the sweetener or coloring used in the fruit will be more wholesome and more pleasing to most tastes.

Do not add flavoring extract of any kind to fruit or sauce, except, perhaps, a little lemon or orange juice.

Apple Butter Roll: Make a rich crust as for pie, roll out in small pieces and spread the apple butter over them. Bake in a hot oven.

Dumplings: Dessert dumplings do not differ much from the rolls except in shape. Round as a dumpling, plump as a roll. Fruit dumplings may be baked, steamed or boiled. They are often steamed and rolled up in the roll which should be tied up in floured muslin. Baked dumplings may have a doughy crust and a boiled dumpling should be thick and heavy.

Nothing but flour, baking powder, salt and sweet milk. This is for the young cook, probably most all experienced cooks know this.

Dumplings for Stews: Mix two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one third teaspoon salt. Add milk to make a stiff dough. Drop by spoonfuls into boiling stew and cook twenty minutes without opening pot.

Baked Cabbage: Cut the cabbage in pieces and boil till tender in salted water. When cold chop fine, add two beaten eggs, a little butter, pepper, salt, and two tablespoons of cream. Stir together and bake till brown in a buttered dish. Serve hot.

Best welcome to all.

WORDS OF GOOD CHEER FROM BILLIE.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters:—When I received your letter, I was very glad to hear from you. I have never read your horoscope? Get some—Mynyon's $1.00, and Pray's $1.00, you will find them. I am very anxious and interested in astrology. I have been reading it for some time and I cannot just now recall. I certainly enjoyed your letter and it shall not be a year before you hear from me. Keep a light heart and be it known you have plenty of company when it comes to trouble. Did you know I have come to that point I laugh at it. There is nothing but death will cause me to finish; and you may say you always seem so cheerful. Why certainly! Even in death that is something that comes to me all. Some no sooner than to come sometimes. Perhaps it is far from those who are called from this world to reward—those who are left will have to come sometime. Perhaps it is for better on the other side and we don't know it. There is consolation in most everything.

Not long ago I received a letter from a relation and not knowing who she consulted her physician. He told her one lung was in very bad condition and a number of other discouraging things. When I received that letter I sat right down, took my quill from behind my ear, and sent her this message: "Don't worry about that lung! Be cheerful! The Lord gave you two instead of one, and many people are walking this earth today with one lung. They only have one myself and don't know it!"

Being troubled with winter's cramp is no reason I am going to fret because my left hand and my right hand and if I cannot write so well it is pardonable. Same way with the eyes if one eye has had to have an operation performed on it. Just congratulate yourself you have another and that may become strengthened. Dreamer: I have been thinking so much of Middle. She certainly has a mind of her own, self-willed to a large degree. Perhaps she needs a widower to keep her in check. He may profit by the experience he had with his first wife. I think it would be better if the clergyman was not so generous. There may be no harm in it, but it does not look well, and his age and experience should tell him so. His generosity will create a love with Middle for these things and if she marries the widower and he can not give them to her she will become very dissatisfied. As to the relatives, nagging never did any good. It only irritates. How much better it would be if they would adopt the motto—"Lifting as we climb!"

BILLIE.

A CHAT FROM TROTTE.

Dear Sisters of Corner:—There are many men of many minds and many kinds of many kinds. In perusing the letters of the Sisters last week I notice two of them had the same mind—most decidedly. No doubt they may have had more experience in matter of dish-washing and seen them done in a slovenly manner. Practical Dishwasher thinks it can be made an enjoyable work. I wish I could think so. I agree with the (secondly) that one needs a light place to be able to get dishes clean. Sinks in many houses are situated where the light never comes directly to them.

Another thought—the sink is often so low it requires a stooping, which is very hard and tiresome. When having a home bath, I did not have the sink placed until I stood up and had it adjusted for my height. So I could stand erect when doing work at sink.

Those who like to wash dishes and think the work fine must be sweet spirited. I am perfectly willing they should be. But it's no fun of mine.

Crimson Rambler: I agree with you. Have often wiped grease off from dishes with paper before washing, and glad some Sister besides myself did

SENATOR JONES IS PROMINENT IN SHIP BILL FIGHT

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Wesley L. Jones, republican, of Washington, is a prominent figure in the ship-buster war the ship purchase bill. He was one of the senators who spoke for many hours in order to kill time and prevent the ship being taken. The endurance shown by Senator Jones was remarkable. He had primed himself for a week with data and talked on many subjects. Senator Jones served in the house for ten years and has been reelected senator, his term expiring in 1921.

Aunt Melitable met with an accident last Saturday; falling and breaking her forearm.

Maime Lovell has been suffering since the 30th of Aug. from breaks to shoulder and arm; not being able to use them much at the present time.

Thanks to Social Corner Editor for correction he granted me. I too, think he has lots of patience to print the many letters, especially mine.

Much more to write but desist for this time.
